Sicherheit als Risiko

Unlängst hat der interne Think-Tank der UBS ein «White Paper» veröffentlicht, das nachdrücklich auf die seit dem Zweiten Weltkrieg noch nie gekannte «Investitionsdürre» hinweist und auf die drohenden Konsequenzen für Wachstum und Volkseinkommen. Dieses Defizit, auch im Sektor langfristiger Infrastrukturfinanzierung, geht paradoixerweise einher mit einer nie da gewesenen, heimat- und ziellosen Geldschwemme.

Laura Weidmann Powers und das Silicon Valley

Das Silicon Valley ist der Ort, wo die Zukunft erfunden wird. Keine andere Gegend auf der Welt ist auch nur annähernd so produktiv und innovativ wie dieses Gebiet um San Francisco und San José. Das Silicon Valley steht auch für Vielfalt: Ohne über genaue Zahlen zu verfügen, kann man wohl behaupten, dass es in den USA keine andere Gegend gibt, wo sich asiatische Minderheiten wie Inder und Chinesen aber auch die LGBT-Gemeinschaft (Lesben, Schwule, Bisexuelle und Transgender) ähnlich erfolgreich durchsetzen können. Und doch hat das Silicon Valley ein Diversity-Problem: Der Anteil an Mitarbeitenden und Führungskräften schwarzer und lateinamerikanischer Herkunft ist in der High-Tech-Branche verschwindend gering. Laura Weidman Powers, Mitgründerin und Geschäftsführerin von CODE2040, möchte dies ändern. Die 2012 gegründete Organisation hat das Ziel, bis 2040 den Anteil dieser

Minderheiten im Silicon Valley auf ihren prozentualen Anteil an der Gesamtbevölkerung zu erhöhen. LGT berichtet darüber.
